LITTLE WHITE LIES

I ordered new coats for my kids. For convenience, I had them shipped directly to their school's lost and found section.

I opened my birthday card, and loads of rice fell out. I knew right away that my Uncle Ben had sent it.

My grandfather invented the cold air balloon ... It never really took off.

I grilled a chicken for two hours. It still wouldn't tell me why it crossed the road.

I once heard of a surgeon who puts organs back in upside down. He says it's an inside joke.

- I was once told they don't sell replacement batteries for my favorite toy.
- My roommate grew up on a farm and was told by her parents that their TV only worked when it rained.
- We got our daughter to eat fish by calling it Argentinian chicken.
- My parents told me that every person gets 10,000 words per month. If you reached the limit you couldn't physically speak until the new month began. All my dad had to say was, "Careful. You're already at 9,000 words..." and it would shut me right up.

I heard a woman at the store ask her kid, "Is that a smart choice to make with your money?" Now, I wish she would follow me around the store, too.

My kids are so open to experiencing culture. They'll try anything, from chicken tenders at an Indian restaurant to chicken tenders at a Mexican restaurant.

I bought a bag of air today. The company that made it was kind enough to also put some potato chips in it.

How does a train hear another train coming? With its engineers.

- My dad said Pulp Fiction was a documentary about oranges, so I wouldn't want to watch it.
- I was told if I ate enough vegetables, my body would make them taste like candy.
- My parents got me to eat calamari by calling it Italian onion rings.
- Dad told me that if the turn signal on the car stayed on too long, the car would flip over.
